When the requirements for piecework cannot be met (for example at the beginning or end of the harvest when the harvest is small) berry pickers shall be paid the time rate. When working on performance based pay, the employee is guaranteed an hourly rate equal to the competence group he or she is classed into. This guarantee does not apply if the employee's performance rate is so slow that it is not at the level of their hourly wage, though working conditions have been normal and there have been no other disruptions related to work arrangements or piece work pricing. The employer shall be responsible for ensuring that piecework rates are correct.
